Developing a Google Apps Add-on For WriteClearly at TIG Hackathon

Quinten Steenhuis writes: "For anybody interested in working on add-ons for Google Docs, I can tell you that the process is surprisingly accessible even for someone new to modern web development, and it can be quite rewarding. It was really fun to spend a day and publish a complete project to the Chrome Web Store. As a model for other projects, I think others could benefit from learning how we were able to develop something useful, quickly, by leveraging existing work."
